

Case Study Telecommunications

Boosting sales and efficiency with AI-powered employee engagement and performance platform

Our client, a leading telecommunications provider from Switzerland, was faced with the challenging task of continuously optimising service quality in its customer service centres, strengthening sales and simultaneously reducing operating costs - particularly in connection with the introduction of nearshore strategies. To successfully manage this balancing act, Capita implemented the innovative Central performance and engagement platform.

| Our approach

Automation

The implementation of the fully automated performance and engagement platform has saved resources and reduced latency, resulting in higher employee satisfaction.

Sales & NPS increase

By creating personal, team-based and group-based competitions, we were able to significantly improve performance.

Interactions

The performance tool offers direct feedback and praise functions, which has greatly improved appreciation, motivation and interaction.

“Central is a great tool for managing performance and supporting our teams on a day-to-day basis!”
